Introduction

On 18 June 1958, The Army National Guard Officer Candidate School of the State of Kentucky was certified and accredited. Special Orders number 169, dated 18 June 1958, established its home station at Frankfort, Kentucky. The academy's first summer camp was held at Camp Breckenridge, near Morganfield in Union County, Kentucky.

Over the past fifty years the academy has undergone many changes in an effort to keep pace with our ever-changing and demanding challenges of our military service. In 1962, during the Berlin Crisis, the academy was temporarily moved to Fort Knox, Kentucky, where it would begin a nearly forty year relationship with the post, until the Academy's permanent move to Fort Knox in October 1977. With the beginning of the new millennium came the move from Fort Knox to its current location at the Wendell H. Ford Regional Training Center in Greenville, Kentucky.

The academy has undergone name changes from Kentucky Military Academy, to Southern Combat Arms Training Brigade, to the 238th Regiment (Combat Arms), in its ever-expanding role as a military schoolhouse.

Initially, only Kentucky National Guard personnel were accepted into the program. Beginning with Class 08-66, 10 candidates from the U. S. Army Reserves, 100th Division were accepted, in what would become a long-lasting training partnership between the Guard and Reserve. With OCS Class 22-80, came the first Active Duty Army Candidate.

The academy opened its doors to female candidates in May 1975. Officer Candidate Deleanius Lamar, an African-American, female, from the 100th Division went through the academy with Class 18-76, receiving her commission on 26 June 1976.

In 1976, the academy developed and graduated the first Non-Commissioned Officer Class.

Over the years many changes have been made to the academy. Regardless of these changes, for today's Kentucky Army National Guard leadership, the "Academy" is their introduction to professional military training and personal military development, on the long road of their military career.

Today the name, Kentucky Military Academy is no longer in use, replaced by the 238th Regiment, however, the mission remains the same, Training the Future Leadership for the Kentucky Army National Guard.

OFFICER CANDIDATE SCHOOL CLASS I-59 (1958-1959)

The Kentucky Army National Guard Officer Candidate School was organized in February 1958 with the first class starting during the summer field training period held at Camp Breckinridge Kentucky in July 1958.

The Officer Candidate School was organized with The Adjutant General of Kentucky as the director of the school. He was aided by an assistant director, the Assistant Adjutant General who coordinated the activities and procedures of the school. He also worked directly with the School Commandant and was a member of the Academic Board.

The Academic Board was appointed by the Adjutant General. Members, as appointed, were representatives of the major commands of The Kentucky Army National Guard, the Tactical Officers, School Commandant and the Senior Army Advisor for Kentucky.

The school year was divided into two terms, the first term was conducted during the summer field training period. Approximately 90 hours of instruction was covered during the term. The second term was conducted at the National Guard Armory, Frankfort, Kentucky on one week-end during each month, except the month of summer field training and the month of December. Approximately 120 hours of instruction were covered during the term for a total of 210 hours of instruction for the school year.¹

OFFICER CANDIDATE SCHOOL CLASS III-61 (1960-1961)

The purpose of the Kentucky Army National Guard Officer Candidate School is to provide a program where selected enlisted men and warrant officers may pursue a course of instruction designed to qualify them for commissions as second lieutenants in the Army National Guard of the United States. Emphasis during this course of instruction is on developing the candidate's capabilities for exercising leadership and command.

The Kentucky Army National Guard Officer Candidate School was organized in February 1958 with the first class starting during the summer field training period held at Camp Breckinridge Kentucky in July 1958.

The Officer Candidate School was organized with The Adjutant General of Kentucky as the director of the school. Approximately 120 hours of instruction were covered during the term for a total of 210 hours of instruction for the school year.

Kentucky Army National Guard Officer Candidate School class number 3-61 began 10 July 1960 at Camp Breckinridge, Kentucky, with an enrollment of 32 candidates. Twenty candidates successfully completed the course of instruction and graduated 30 June 1961. Of the 20 candidates who graduated, 19 were sworn in and extended Federal recognition in The Army National Guard of the United States in the following branch of service: Armor – 5; Artillery – 8; Engineer – 4; Ordnance – 1; Signal – 1.

The commissioning of one candidate was delayed pending the results of a second medical examination.³

OFFICER CANDIDATE SCHOOL CLASS IV-62 (1961-1962)

Kentucky National Guard Officer Candidate School class number 4-62 began 24 July 1961 at Camp Breckinridge, Kentucky with an enrollment of 50 candidates. Because of the critical world situation which developed out of the Berlin crisis the school program was accelerated. Twenty-six candidates successfully completed the course of instruction and graduated 20 December 1961. Four Officer Candidates, originally with class number 4-62 were separated from the course and sent to an accelerated course conducted for the Second Army area at Indiantown Gap Military Reservation in Pennsylvania. The Pennsylvania course enabled these candidates to complete the OCS program and qualify themselves for commission prior to departing with their Kentucky Army National Guard units for active duty.⁴

OFFICER CANDIDATE SCHOOL CLASS V-63 (1962-1963)

Kentucky National Guard Officer Candidate School class number 5-63 began 17 March 1962, at the Armory, Frankfort, Kentucky, with an enrollment of 33 candidates.

When the Department of Defense announced that Kentucky National Guard units called into Active Federal service during the Berlin crisis would be released by the end of August 1962, special arrangements were made with the Army commanders concerned and branch OCS schools were established at Fort Knox, Kentucky, by Headquarters, 3rd Medium Tank Battalion, 123rd Armor, Kentucky Army National Guard and at Fort Stewart, Georgia, by Headquarters, 2nd Medium Tank Battalion, 123rd Armor and the 413th Ordnance Company, Kentucky Army National Guard. The curriculum for the branch schools covered those subjects which would be taught by the Kentucky National Guard OCS prior to the annual active duty for training period 1962.

This arrangement permitted 24 candidates who successfully completed the courses taught by the branch schools to be transferred into Kentucky Army National Guard OCS class 5-63 at ANACDUTRA 1962 at Camp Breckinridge, Kentucky.

Thirty-seven candidates successfully completed the course of instruction and graduated 7 June 1963.⁵

OFFICER CANDIDATE SCHOOL CLASS XV-73 (1972-1973)

Organized in 1958, with 20 graduates receiving commissions in 1959, the Kentucky Army National Guard Officer Candidate School has established a reputation for the production of leaders of excellence.

OCS Commandant LTC William C. Morris and his staff witnessed the culmination of a year of dedicated work with the graduation of 28 Candidates for 1973, 26 of whom were from the KyARNG and 2 from the US Army Reserve.

Following a program of instruction set forth by the US Army Infantry School, Ft. Benning, GA, the staff insures that a level of proficiency in Military Leadership is attained which will guide the graduates throughout their Military career as leaders and future commanders in the KyARNG.

Dedications and diligent work was the byword of this past graduating class. The Honor Graduate award was presented to 2LT Clifford L. Childers, while 2LT Roy D. Lester attained the High Academic Award. Both were formerly of Btry B, 2nd Bn, 138th FA, Elizabethtown, KY.

Candidates enter the OCS program as members of the Junior OCS Class and attend the first of two Annual Training sessions required of all candidates. After the first Annual Training period the candidates attend a minimum of 12 weekend meetings at the OCS Headquarters in Frankfort, KY, to receive instruction in those subjects which are necessary for newly commissioned 2LTs in their initial assignment, along with training in Military Leadership. The Jr Class attains Sr Class recognition as it proceeds into the second Annual Training period after which graduation and new gold bars await those diligent enough to have withstood the rigors of the year of training. After being commissioned the 2LTs proceed to their new assignments and enter the next phase of military training, which will see them enter Branch Officer Basic Courses, either at Army Service Schools and/or through Correspondence Courses and on to the Advanced Courses which will continue throughout their Military Careers.¹⁶

OFFICER CANDIDATE SCHOOL CLASS XVI-74 (1973-1974)

The Kentucky Army National Guard Officer Candidate School program has produced 530 officers since its beginning in 1958. Candidates enter the program as members of the Junior OCS class and attend the first two-week Annual Training session. Candidates then attend at least 12 weekend meetings at OCS Headquarters in Frankfort before attending a second Annual Training session. Upon completion of that training, successful candidates receive the gold bars of a second lieutenant.

Class XVI, which graduated 15 June 1974, was the first to participate in new training programs that included:

1. A three-day training exercise at the U. S. Army Ranger School at Fort Benning, Georgia.
2. The first Kentucky Officer Candidate School Dining In.
3. Curriculum additions beyond those required by the U. S. Army Infantry School.
4. A fund-raising project to finance Dining In, a graduation dinner-dance and a yearbook.
5. Use of the best available instructors from both the ARNG and the Army Reserve.
6. Combined Annual Training with Guardsmen and Reservists from Indiana and Ohio at Camp Atterbury, Indiana.

The Military Academy received the U. S. Army Infantry School Certificate of Academic Excellence for the second time for attaining the highest academic average (91-34) in the First Army Area.

Plans for a Non-Commissioned Officers Candidate School program were begun during FY 74. When implemented, the program will consist of about 90 hours of instruction.¹⁷

OFFICER CANDIDATE SCHOOL CLASS XVII-75 (1974-1975)

Nine officers and three enlisted men operate the Frankfort-based Kentucky Military Academy, which has produced 559 junior officers for the Kentucky Army National Guard and the U. S. Army Reserve since its founding in 1958.

The candidate course includes three phases in which the students go through the transition from enlisted member to commissioned officer. The training includes about 285 hours of formal instruction, plus additional work at military installations.

Women were permitted to enroll in the officer candidate program for the first time in May 1975.

The Academy graduated 20 second lieutenants during FY 1975 and the new officers were assigned to units all over the state. The training was improved and new programs were added to the curriculum to give Kentucky one of the finest OCS programs in the nation.¹⁸

OFFICER CANDIDATE SCHOOL CLASS XVIII-76 (1975-1976)

The Kentucky Military Academy, located in Frankfort, continued to advance as one of the finest units of its kind in the nation. Two significant events marked the continued growth of the academy during its eighteenth year of operation.

The first woman ever to enroll in the Officer Candidate program graduated during the period. Deleanius Lamar, of Lexington, received her commission 26 June 1976.

The academy set another precedent by graduating its first class of noncommissioned officers. Responding to the need for more qualified NCOs to meet the leadership challenges of the Guard, the academy enrolled its first class for a six-month program in January.

Since its inception in 1958, the academy has provided 586 second lieutenants and 15 NCOs for the Kentucky Army National Guard and the U. S. Army Reserves.

The program is similar to the course the Army provides on active duty at Fort Benning, Georgia. It includes four weeks of active duty training, 285 hours of formal classroom instruction, and a tough 36-hour resident Ranger Course. The candidates also receive training in military discipline, tactics, procedures, protocol, courtesy, and social etiquette.

NCO Program

The new NCO program was fully accredited by Fifth Army and enjoyed great success in its first year. The students spend 160 hours in classroom study and devote two weeks to active duty field training.

Fifteen men and women graduated from the school with four recognized for particular achievement.

Specialist 5 Shearl A. Moore, Cynthiana, earned both the Adjutant General Trophy and the Association of the U. S. Army Plaque for leadership and academic achievement. Sergeant Harold Dudley, Louisville, received the Enlisted Association of the Kentucky National Guard Award for having the highest academic rank. Specialist 4 Richie A. Maze, Carlisle, earned the Commandant's Award for self-improvement.¹⁹

OFFICER CANDIDATE SCHOOL CLASS XIX-77 (1976-1977)

The Kentucky Military Academy holds a major position in the development of officers and noncommissioned officers for the Kentucky National Guard. The graduates of the academy's two programs now provide the bulk of the highly-qualified leaders directing the activities of units across the state.

The end of the fiscal year brought with it the graduation of 25 second lieutenants, bringing the total number of graduates to 586 in the Officer Candidate School's nineteen years of existence.

Forty-one NCO's also completed a comprehensive training program, returning qualified leaders to their home units.

The year also brought enrollment of 55 junior OCS candidates and 16 new students in the NCO program.

At the end of the period, the academy had begun to plan for a move to Fort Knox, where greatly-improved training facilities would be available. This move will eliminate the need to construct specialized training facilities at Boone Center to support the academy's programs.

The academy's standards remained high and the programs greatly exceeded minimums accepted for similar programs.²⁰

OFFICER CANDIDATE SCHOOL

CLASS XX-78 (1977-1978)

The Kentucky Military Academy continued to advance its programs to one of the highest among similar state programs across the country.

Since its inception in 1958, the academy has provided 652 second lieutenants, and 116 non-commissioned officers to fill existing vacancies throughout the Commonwealth in the Kentucky Guard and Army Reserve.

Similar in subject content to the Active Army Officer Candidate School, the candidates in the academy undergo three phases of training during their progression from enlisted to officer status. The staff of 12 officers and six enlisted personnel guide the OCS students through four weeks of active duty training and 12 weekend drills for a total of 500 hours of training. The Non-Commissioned Officer Academy students get over 200 hours training through two weeks active duty and six weekend drills.

Thirty-one Guard members, and four Army Reservists were commissioned second lieutenants in this year's class in the OCS program.

To help the academy in its mission, it was moved to Fort Knox in October 1977 to conduct all phases of training. The academy gained 15 buildings at Fort Knox to use for training.²¹

OFFICER CANDIDATE SCHOOL CLASS XXII-80 (1979-1980)

The Kentucky Military Academy is responsible for the development of leadership techniques, increased career educational opportunities, increased self-confidence and a sense of responsibility for both Officer Candidate and Non-Commissioned Officer Schools.

The Officer Candidate School has provided 728 Second Lieutenants for the Army National Guard and U.S. Army Reserves since its inception in 1958. The Non-Commissioned Officer School has produced 359 NCOs thru the Basic, Advanced and Senior courses offered at the Academy.

The Officer Candidate program, tailored along the same lines as the Basic Infantry OCS program offered by the U.S. Army Infantry School at Fort Benning, GA., has been expanded to 625 formal hours of instruction, and includes training exercises with the 82nd Airborne Recondo School, the U.S. Army Ranger School and the Boone Raider Training provided by our own 1st Battalion, 149th Infantry (Mechanized) plus additional take-home requirements determined by the Commandant and his staff. This year was the first time the Kentucky Military Academy trained Active Army personnel, joining only one other state in the nation in this activity. The Officer Candidate School is conducted as a three phase program of instruction by a weekend staff of 12 officers and 16 enlisted personnel. The same staff also provides the training support for the Non-Commissioned Officers Course offered by the Academy, consisting of approximately 88 hours for each course. The NCO program runs a course each six months, with one course overlapping for two months. It also conducts a Senior Course of seven days active duty each year patterned after the Sergeants' Major Academy, Fort Bliss, Texas, plus a basic and advanced course during the Annual Training period.

The Academy conducts its mission in 15 buildings on lease from Ft. Knox, KY., which are also used as a weekend training site by other elements of the Kentucky National Guard.

Twenty-six Guardsmen and three Army Reservists received commissions as second lieutenants in 1979. One hundred ninety-five members of the Army National Guard graduated from the two basic, two advanced and one senior courses of the Non-Commissioned Officers School.

The Officer Candidate School honored three members for outstanding performance while members of the class. 2nd Lt. Ralph E. Walz, Louisville, received the Erickson Trophy as the distinguished graduate, plus the Association of the U. S. Army Plaque for leadership. 2nd Lt. William J. Jurison, Paducah, received the National Guard Association Award for academics, and 2nd Lt. John C. Tipton, Lexington, received the Commandants Award for most improved student.²³

OFFICER CANDIDATE SCHOOL CLASS XXIII-81 (1980-1981)

The Kentucky Military Academy mission is to provide resident education and training in the fields of leadership and professional military skills to members of the Kentucky National Guard and the U.S. Army Reserve.

In October 1980, the Academy's facilities were moved from Frankfort to Fort Knox. The Academy's facilities consist of 23 buildings which are on lease or hand receipt from Fort Knox. These facilities are also utilized to support other National Guard units, Army Reserve and Active Army training.

During the past year, the Academy conducted two Officer Candidate Schools, one Senior NCO course, two Advanced NCO courses, three Basic NCO courses and a Train the Trainer course, with a total of 391 students completing the courses.

OCS Class 23-81 commissioned 27 men and women as Second Lieutenants in the Kentucky Army National Guard on June 20, 1981. The graduation exercises were held in the Capitol Rotunda in Frankfort with the Honorable Larry Hopkins, U.S. Representative, as the speaker. Lt. Gov. Martha Layne Collins hosted a reception at her home for the graduates and their families following the graduation ceremony.

The Officer Candidate School honored three members for outstanding performance while members of the class. 2nd Lt. Robert Trahan Jr. received the Erickson Trophy as the distinguished graduate, plus the National Guard Association Award for Academics. 2nd Lt. Charles Flynn received the Association of the U.S. Army Plaque for Leadership and 2nd Lt. Patricia Fore received the Commandants Award for most improved student.

The Kentucky Military Academy is accredited as an academy by the Fifth United States Army and National Guard Bureau. The Kentucky National Guard's School programs have become very visible throughout the Fifth U.S. Army area as the Kentucky Military Academy was selected to present its programs and philosophies to all major commanders in the Fifth U.S. Army during the Annual Commanders Conference.²⁴

OFFICER CANDIDATE SCHOOL CLASS XXIV-82 (1981-1982)

The Kentucky Military Academy's mission is to provide resident education and training in the fields of leadership and professional military skill to members of the Kentucky National Guard and the U. S. Army Reserve.

The Academy is located at Fort Knox, Ky., and occupies 21 buildings, which are on lease or hand receipt from Fort Knox. These facilities are also utilized to support other National Guard, Army Reserve and Active Army training. These facilities have been identified for a renovation project of $270,000, which is scheduled to begin prior to Oct. 1, 1982. The renovation will be completed with 100 percent Federal funds.

In the past year, the Academy has added six new programs to its curriculum, bringing the total number of courses now offered to 12. Over 1,000 student spaces were made available to Kentucky National Guard and Army Reserve personnel in the past year. All courses conducted by the Academy are directed toward performance-oriented training, as much as possible, with students actually performing tasks and practical exercises. The Academy is undertaking a program in coordination with several Kentucky universities to award college credits for training received by students attending the Academy.

The Kentucky Military Academy Officer Candidate School has commissioned 43 percent of Kentucky Army National Guard officers currently serving in an Active Guard status. Graduation exercises for the 1982 Officer Candidate School were to be held in the Capitol Rotunda, Frankfort, on Aug. 7, 1982, with 27 men and one woman expected to receive diplomas. Col. James R. Daniel, a former commandant of the Academy who is currently serving on the staff of the National Guard Bureau and the National Guard Professional Education Center, was scheduled to be the guest speaker for the graduation exercise.

The Noncommissioned Officer Education Program conducted by the Academy has been identified by Active Army personnel as one of the most progressive programs in the Fifth United States Army. Several of the NCO programs are being conducted jointly by the Academy and U. S. Army Reserve School. Eight separate NCO courses were conducted in the past year, with one class graduating 145 Kentucky Guardspersons. Prior to this year, the largest graduating class for any course was 66 individuals.

Col. Julius L. Berthold was assigned as commandant of the Kentucky Military Academy on June 15, 1982. Col. James R. Daniel served as commandant prior to that time.

Specific courses conducted by the Kentucky Military Academy are: Officer Candidate School, Basic Noncommissioned Officer Course, Primary Noncommissioned Officer Course, Primary Noncommissioned Officer Cadre Course, Advanced Noncommissioned Officer Course, Senior Noncommissioned Officer Course, Company Commander Course, Battalion Training Management System Course Managers Course, Platoon Trainers Workshop, Trainers Workshop, and Train the Trainer Course.²⁵

OFFICER CANDIDATE SCHOOL CLASS XXV-83 (1982-1983)

The Kentucky Military Academy, under the direction of the Commandant, Colonel Julius L. Berthold, provides resident education and training in the fields of leadership and professional military skills to members of the Kentucky Army National Guard.

The Academy is located at Fort Knox, and occupies 21 buildings which are on lease and hand receipt from Fort Knox. The facilities are also utilized to support other National Guard, Army Reserve and Active Army training.

In the past year, the Academy added four new courses to its program, bringing the total number of courses now offered to 16. Over 1,500 student spaces were made available to Kentucky Army National Guard personnel in the past year. All courses conducted by the Academy are performance oriented as much as possible, with students actually performing the tasks and practical exercises. The Academy is progressing in its program in the awarding of college credit hours for training completed by students attending the Academy.

The Academy was recognized by the Fifth United States Army for the highest percentage of Non Commissioned Officer personnel trained in relation to state strength and was second in the number of personnel trained. The Battalion Commander's Course conducted in March 1983, was the first of its kind in the nation and is currently being studied by National Guard Bureau for possible implementation nationwide. The Kentucky Military Academy has been recognized as the first Academy to implement the Military Qualification Standards I for Officer Candidates and has participated in a Seminar at the United States Army Infantry School for the purpose of designing an implementation program for other ARNG and active duty OCS programs. The Kentucky Military Academy has been selected by National Guard Bureau to be the host academy to validate the new Primary Leadership Development Course for Non-Commissioned Officers in FY'84.

The Kentucky Military Academy Officer Candidate School continues to be a primary source of Second Lieutenants for the Kentucky Army National Guard. 43 percent of the Kentucky Army National Guard Officers serving in an Active Guard status are State Military Academy graduates. Graduation exercises for the 1983 Officer Candidate Class are to be conducted in the Capitol Rotunda, Frankfort, 6 August 1983, with 26 men and two women expected to receive diplomas. The Honorable Hal Rogers, United States Representative of the Fifth Congressional District, is scheduled to be the guest speaker for the graduation exercises.

The Non-Commissioned Officer Education Program conducted by the Academy continues to be one of the most progressive in the Fifth United States Army area. Ten separate NCO courses were conducted in FY '83. Current policy will require all enlisted personnel of the Kentucky Army National Guard to complete an Academy NCO course prior to being promoted to the rank of Staff Sergeant or above.

Specific Courses conducted by the Kentucky Military Academy are: Officer Candidate School, Basic Non-Commissioned Officer Course, Primary Non Commissioned Officer Course, Primary Non Commissioned Officer Cadre Course, Advanced Non Commissioned Officer Course, Senior Non Commissioned Officer Course, Company Commander Course, Battalion Commanders Course, Pre Basic Combat Training Course, Battalion Training Management System Course, Manager's Course, Training Managers Workshop, Training Supervisors Workshop, Platoon Trainers Workshop, Trainers Workshop, and Train the Trainer Course.²⁶

OFFICER CANDIDATE SCHOOL CLASS XXVI-84 (1983-1984)

The Kentucky Military Academy, located at Fort Knox, Kentucky is not a part of the Plans, Operations and Military Support directorate, but is closely aligned with the directorate for mission/technician support and guidance. The academy is divided into Officer Candidate and Noncommissioned Officer Division. The school is validated annually for the active army schools branch to insure that our curriculum is comparable to active army schools.

The Kentucky Military Academy, commanded by Col. Leo Henderson, provides resident education in the fields of leadership and professional military skills to members of the Kentucky Army National Guard and U. S. Army Reserve.

Over $300,000 in federal funds were provided in the past year to upgrade the academy facilities at Fort Knox. Utilizing current facilities on lease and loan, KMA has the capacity to house, feed and train 360 students at one time.

KMA has grown from one course in its inception in 1958 with 20 officer candidates to 26 classes with over 1,000 individuals trained in the past year. Courses are now offered for enlisted personnel from the rank of private to sergeant major and second lieutenant to lieutenant colonel in the Officer Corps. Under current policy an individual may be required to attend as many as five programs of instruction at KMA during their military career. The academy has also undertaken the task of providing assistance and guidance to the junior officer in obtaining college credits for their military training and enrolling in Kentucky institutions of higher learning in pursuit of a baccalaureate degree.

The Kentucky Military Academy Officer Candidate School conducted graduation exercises on 7 July 1984 at the Capitol Rotunda in Frankfort for 28 officer candidates, culminating 14 months of training. The Officer Candidate program provides 43 percent of the officer corps strength of the Kentucky Army National Guard.

KMA continues to be recognized as one of the most progressive academies in the nation. It was selected by National Guard Bureau to conduct an operational test of the primary leadership development course for noncommissioned officers.

Several training concepts initiated by KMA have been adopted for implementation by the U. S. Army Infantry School Officer Candidate program and the Reserve Component Noncommissioned Officer Education System.²⁷

OFFICER CANDIDATE SCHOOL CLASS XXVII-85 (1984-1985)

The Kentucky Military, located at Fort Knox, provides resident education in the fields of leadership and professional military skills to members of the Kentucky National Guard and the United States Army Reserve. The KMA occupies 21 buildings on Fort Knox which are on a lease or receipt from the United States Army. The facilities are also utilized to support other training of the Kentucky National Guard, Army Reserve or Active Army units. Twenty-nine different courses are now taught at the KMA and over 1,400 students were processed the past year.

KMA provides a unique opportunity for guardsmen to receive a commission without leaving their homes and employment for an extended period of time. A commission can be earned by attending the academy for two annual training periods (2 weeks each) and twelve inactive duty training periods of two days each. The majority of the officers in the Kentucky Army Guard have earned a commission through this program.

This coming fiscal year, KMA will expand its area of emphasis to include civilian education by offering college courses to officer candidates and members of the academy staff and facility. College correspondence studies also have become a part of the program for some officer candidates.²⁸

OFFICER CANDIDATE SCHOOL CLASS XXVIII-86 (1985-1986)

The Kentucky Military Academy, located at Fort Knox, Kentucky, is not a part of the Plans, Operations, and Military Support Directorate, but is closely aligned with the directorate for mission, support and full-time personnel direction and guidance. The Academy is accredited by the National Guard Bureau and the Second United States Army.

Commanded by Colonel William I. Fox, Jr., the Academy provides resident education in fields of leadership, professional military skills and civilian education enhancement to members of the Kentucky Army National Guard and U. S. Army Reserves.

The facility has the capacity to house, feed, and train up to 360 students at one time. The facilities are also utilized for the training of federal, state, local, and military law enforcement agencies, and to support weekend and annual training of KyARNG units. The leasing and maintenance costs for operating the facility is supported by federal funds.

Twenty different programs are offered at least once each year, with over 1,400 students in attendance in the past year. Programs are conducted for all ranks from the new private entering military service to the Lieutenant Colonel assuming command of a battalion. Courses vary in length from 2 to 58 days of training.

In the past year, the Academy entered into the civilian education arena by having college courses conducted on nights before weekend training, culminating with some students obtaining as many as 26 semester hours.

A GED training and testing program was implemented in March 1986, which resulted in 32 Kentucky Army National Guardsmen being granted a GED. This program had a first-time test success rate of more than 30 percent, which is twice the national average.

Through its Officer Candidate School, KMA provided 40 percent of the officer corps of the Kentucky Army National Guard. Under current policy, an enlisted person may attend as many as five courses of formal instruction in order to progress in their military assignments.

The Kentucky Military Academy continues to be a progressive organization with the implementation of three new courses in the past year and the addition of two more courses in the next fiscal year.²⁹

Located at Fort Knox, the Kentucky Military Academy (KMA) is not a part of the plans, Operations, Training and Military Support Directorate; however it is closely aligned with the directorate for mission, support and full-time personnel direction and guidance.

Commanded by Colonel William I. Fox, Jr., the Academy is accredited by the National Guard Bureau and the Second Army as it provides resident education in fields of leadership, professional military skills and civilian education enhancement to members of the Kentucky Army National Guard and U. S. Army Reserves.

The Fort Knox based facility has the capacity to house, feed and train up to 360 students at one time. Additionally, the KMA facilities are utilized for the training of federal, state, local and military law enforcement agencies, and to support weekend and annual training for Kentucky Army National Guard units on an as-needed basis. Federal funding supports leasing and maintenance costs for operating the KMA facility.

Nineteen different programs are offered at least once each year, with more than 1,400 students attending courses in the past year. Programs are conducted for all soldiers ranging from newly enlisted Privates to Lieutenant Colonels about to assume command of a battalion. Courses offered at KMA vary in length from 2 to 58 days of training duration.

Through its Officer Candidate School, KMA has provided 40 percent of the officer corps of the Kentucky Army National Guard. Under current policy, an enlisted soldier may attend as many as five courses of formal instruction in order to progress professionally in their military assignments.

The implementation of two new courses in the past year serves as additional proof of the Kentucky Military Academy's progressive posture. Additionally, colleges and universities throughout the Commonwealth continue to recognize the high standards of the KMA and its curriculum by awarding college credit hours for the successful completion of several programs.³⁰

The Kentucky Military Academy, located at Fort Knox, Kentucky, is not a part of the Plans, Operations, and Military Support Directorate, but is closely aligned with the directorate for mission, support and full-time personnel direction and guidance. The Academy is accredited by the National Guard Bureau and the Second United States Army.

Commanded by Colonel William I. Fox, Jr., through 1 April 1988 and presently under the command of Lieutenant Colonel John R. Groves, Jr., the Academy provides resident education in fields of leadership, professional military skills and civilian education enhancement to members of the Kentucky Army National Guard and U. S. Army Reserves.

The facility has the capacity to house, feed, and train up to 360 students at one time. The facilities are also utilized for the training of federal, state, local, and military law enforcement agencies, and to support weekend and annual training of KyARNG units. The leasing and maintenance costs for operating the facility is supported by federal funds.

Twenty different programs are offered at least once each year, with over 1,200 students in attendance in the past year. Programs are conducted for all ranks from the new private entering military service to the Lieutenant Colonel assuming command of a battalion. Courses vary in length from 2 to 58 days of training.

In the past year, the Academy entered into the civilian education arena by having college courses conducted on nights before weekend training, culminating with some students obtaining as many as 26 semester hours.

Through its Officer Candidate School, KMA provided 40% of the officer corps of the Kentucky Army National Guard. Under current policy, an enlisted person may attend as many as four courses of formal instruction in order to progress in their military assignments.

The Kentucky Military Academy is the home of the institutional leader training within the Kentucky Army National Guard. Officer and Non-Commissioned Officer courses are the current focus of the academy, with expanded training efforts into soldier qualification programs in the fields of Automated Supply Specialist, Fire Direction Specialist, MLRS Crew Member, Infantry, and Mortar Crewmember.

Kentucky Military Academy is located on the Fort Knox military installation. Buildings 2376 and 2377 are modern multi-story structures located on Brave Rifles Regiment Road. The academy can support 216 students in semi-private quarters, conducting actual training in eight local small group classrooms.

Kentucky Military Academy is playing a key coordinating role as the entire Army embraces the Total Army School System (TASS). Kentucky performs coordination duties as the Combat Arms School Brigade (CASB), for Region D (Kentucky, Alabama, Mississippi, and Tennessee). These duties include representing the Regional State Military Academies during: a. Regional Training Council Meetings. b. Pre-Structure Manning and Decision Reviews. c. Branch related training meetings. d. Regional Coordinating Element (RCE) meetings.³⁷

Southern Combat Arms Training Brigade
(formerly Kentucky Military Academy)

The Southern Combat Arms Training Brigade (SCATB), located at Fort Knox, is operated by the Kentucky Army National Guard to provide officer and NCO training, as well as military occupational specialty qualification (MOSQ) courses for Guard, Reserve, and Active Army personnel. The variety of courses offered focuses on leadership and professional military skills.

The brigade's institutional training mission is shared and complimented by the efforts of other Guard school commands in the states of Tennessee, Alabama, and Mississippi. Region D is the geographic title of which these four Regional Training Institutes are a part, under the Total Army School System, (TASS).

The brigade has the capability to house and support 150 students on-site at Fort Knox. Current instructor capabilities will allow for 237 Kentucky Guard students to be trained during the fiscal year. During FY96, a total of 233 students graduated from various courses instructed at SCATB.

The Southern Combat Arms Training Brigade receives guidance from the Army proponent schools as it conducts leadership and MOSQ training for its customers in Region D. This helps to enhance the quality of instruction as the SCATB moves into the future of military training.³⁸

The 238th Regiment and its subordinate units: 1/238th General Studies Battalion, 123d Training Site Support Battalion and the Unit Training Equipment Site (UTES) are located at the Wendell H. Ford Regional Training Center in Greenville, Kentucky. The Wendell H. Ford Regional Training Center provides 7,200 acres of maneuver space and state of the art simulation training facilities as well as modern classroom, barracks and unit administration facilities.

The 238th Regiment is Kentucky's flagship for all combat arms individual MOSQ, Common Leader Training (CLT) for ANCOC and BNCOC, and OCS. As a part of The Army School System (TASS), the 238th Regiment conducts institutional training in coordination and in conjunction with active component and USAR schools. The 238th Regiment is responsible for preparing officers for their initial assignment as a Second Lieutenant and Noncommissioned Officers for the leadership challenges of squad leader and platoon sergeant positions.

In addition to leadership training, the 238th Regiment also conducts military occupational specialty qualification training for a variety of infantry, armor, and artillery soldiers. National Guard, United States Army Reserve, and active component soldiers from the four state Region D travel to Fort Knox, Kentucky to be trained as Cavalry Scouts, M1 Armor Crewmen, Infantrymen, MLRS Crew Members, Fire Support Specialists, MLRS Operations/Fire Direction Specialists, and Cannon Fire Direction Specialists.

The 238th Regiment utilizes the state of the art educational facilities of the Wendell H. Ford Regional Training Center to enhance the student's learning opportunities. These superior facilities and our highly professional staff support both TASS and Non-TASS courses for the KYARNG.

In addition to providing outstanding training for soldiers, the 238th Regiment leadership is working to maintain the high quality of training. The Regimental Commander, Command Sergeant Major, and Operations Officer represent Kentucky in TASS Regional Training meetings, Pre-Structure Manning and Decision Reviews, and Regional Coordinating Element (RCE) meetings. The 238th Regiment works closely with the National Guard Bureau, the RCE, and Training and Doctrine Command to execute world-class training. OFFICER CANDIDATE SCHOOL CLASS XLVI-04 (2003-2004)

The 238th Regiment (Combat Arms) continues a long-standing tradition of excellence in producing and developing the future leadership of the Kentucky National Guard. Students currently attend Officer Candidate School, Basic Non-commissioned Officer Course, Advance Non-commissioned Officer Course, and MOS training for Infantry, Field Artillery, and Cavalry. The 238th Regimental Headquarters resides at the Wendell H. Ford Regional Training Center (WHFRTC), a 10,000-plus acre facility capable of housing over 900 soldiers. WHFRTC training facility consist of: a battalion-size maneuver area; live-fire small arms ranges; a laser gunnery range for tanks and missile systems; and extensive simulation facilities to include a Firearms Training System (FATS), Conduct of Fire Trainer (COFT), Abrams Fully Integrated Simulations Trainer (A-FIST), Guardfist II Call for Fire Trainer (CFFT), Simulation Network (SIMNET) suite, and a Deployable Force-on-force Instrumented Range System (DFIRST). WHFRTC is fully staffed to host National Guard, other military, and in most cases civilian agencies.

Training Division also manages the state's military schools and professional education program. During FY 04, 525 Soldiers graduated from their Military

Occupational Specialty Qualification (MOSQ) courses, 259 completed Non-commissioned Officer (NCO) courses, and 180 officers graduated from their required Officer Education courses.⁴⁴

The overall outstanding instructor will be nominated thru NGB to TRADOC per stated MOI for consideration as TRADOC Instructor of the Year.

Shoulder Sleeve Insignia and Distinctive Unit Insignia

Shoulder Sleeve Insignia the Academy

First KMA Shoulder Sleeve Insignia (Historical) (Kentucky STARC patch with OCS, wore on the right breast pocket)

Description: On a shield 2 ½-inches in width and 3 ¼-inches in height overall tri-parted blue, white, and red with a yellow chief, a white quill and long rifle barrel up, both outlined in blue diagonally from upper to lower left and right, all within an 1/8-inch blue border. The letters, O, C, S, centered diagonally in the white tri-parted section just below the cross section of the quill and long rifle.

Symbolism: Red, white and blue are our national colors. The color yellow, red, and blue allude to the combat arms: Armor (Cavalry), Artillery, and Infantry. The long rifle is inseparably associated with the early history of Kentucky prior to and after its admission to the Union as the 15th State. The quill, symbol of administrative functions, refers to the headquarters element of the guard. OCS indicates the State Officer Candidate School.

Second KMA Shoulder Shield Insignia (Historical)

Description: Top left corner to be field of Blue with White stars with one 1/16" White and 1/16" Red stripe running diagonal upward from left to right to denote our country's colors and highlighted by fifteen stars, symbolic of Kentucky the fifteen State of the Union. ½ inch KMA letters are White on a field of Blue denoting State colors.

Symbolism: State emblem of gold, symbolic of the newly commissioned officer centered on the patch ½ inch from the bottom with the minuteman superimposed in Red and White to denote the readiness of the newly commissioned officer to lead.

Class Coins

“COINING” TRADITION IN THE KENTUCKY NATIONAL GUARD

The tradition of “coining” is relative new to the United States military, however, it has its roots in the Roman Empire, where coins were presented for achievement.

American military legend has it that during the First World War a wealthy young American flyer ordered medallions struck in solid bronze carrying the emblem of his squadron, these he presented to every member of his squadron. He carried his medallion in a small leather pouch around his neck.

While on a mission, shortly after acquiring the medallions, the pilot’s aircraft was severely damaged by ground fire, forcing him to land in enemy territory, whereupon he was captured by a German patrol. The Germans took all of his personal identification except for the small leather pouch around his neck. The American was taken to a small French village located near the front. That evening he took advantage of a bombardment and escaped. He successfully avoided German patrols and made his way back to friendly lines, where he stumbled into a French outpost. The French in this sector had been plagued by saboteurs. The French nor the American could speak the others language and not recognizing the young American as a pilot and allied to their cause thought him a saboteur and made preparations to execute him. Just in time the young pilot remembered his leather pouch and the medallion. He showed the medallion to his would-be executioners, who recognized the squadron insignia engraved on the medallion and delayed the execution long enough to confirm his identity. Instead of shooting him, he was presented a bottle of wine. Returning to his squadron, it soon became a tradition to ensure that all members carried their medallion or coin at all times.

In the 1960s, a member of the 11th Special Forces Group took old coins and had them over-stamped with a different emblem, then presented them to unit members. The idea of minting a unit coin for a U.S. military unit came from a commander of the 10th Special Forces Group.

The tradition of “coining” in the Kentucky National Guard was initiated by Major General Robert L. DeZarn. While serving as Kentucky’s Adjutant General, Major General DeZarn presented coins to soldiers for military achievement. Below are a couple examples of coins presented by OCS classes.
